Nguyet

In a small town in Vietnam, a severe disability kept young Nguyet behind closed doors. Constrained by the high demands of her condition, her parents were also isolated from their neighbours. There is a high level of disability in Vietnam, particularly as a legacy of war, but little support for families whose children have disabilities. People with disability have poorer health outcomes, lower educational achievements, lower economic participation and higher rates of poverty than people without disability.

The future seemed bleak for the whole family, until Nguyet's family became participants in a program supported by Caritas Australia. A neighbour kindly introduced the family to the Capacity Building for Parent Associations Supporting Children with Disabilities program, which has given them support on several levels. The neighbour, a teacher, has been able to offer Nguyet home-based education, and there is capacity building for her parents and others in the same situation, through their local Parents' Association. At Association meetings, Nguyet's mother has been able to increase her skills for managing her daughter's condition, and share her experiences with other parents of children with disabilities.

Nguyet has learnt to read and write and better manage her physical needs, and her creative gifts have been unlocked. Now she is increasingly engaging with her neighbours, and she and her parents are more confident about her future.

Please donate to Project Compassion 2017 and give children living with disabilities in Vietnam the opportunity for education and inclusion in their community.

4th Sunday of Lent - A - 26 March 2017

See God within

Long ago in St. Mary's, Kansas, there was a little outdoor shrine to our lady where the Indians often came to sing hymns and to pray. As years went by, the statue grew old and colourless. The paint weathered away and the face lost its expression. When the new parish priest came, he took one look at it and said, "Something has to be done about this. This statue looks blind – it's almost a blasphemy to Our Lady. In no time the word got around among the Indians that the new parish priest was going to paint the statue. They should have been very happy about it, because Indians are supposed to like bright colours. But they were not and they came to the parish house door and told the priest they did not want the statue painted. "Why?" he asked. "Don't you want her to look beautiful? Why, she looks blind!"

"Yes," said the chief. "We like her that way, because she cannot see our faults, she can only hear our prayers."

The beggar in today's gospel was blind from birth. He had never seen another human being. And yet, he listened to what Jesus told him to do, "Go and wash in the Pool of Siloam." 'So the blind man went off and washed himself, and came away with his sight restored.' His blindness was not the result of sin: "Neither he nor his parents sinned, he was born blind so that the works of God might be displayed in him."

The message of today's gospel is that the blind see, while those with sight are blind. The real miracle was that the blind man recognised Jesus as the Messiah, whom the religious experts failed to see. "This man can not be from God: he does not keep the Sabbath." As a poet once expressed it: 'There are none so blind as those who do not wish to see.' St Paul draws the conclusion for us: "You were darkness once, but now you are light in the Lord; be like children of light, for the effects of the light are seen in complete goodness and right living and truth."

Let us pray that our eyes will be opened to the presence of God through the people whom we come in contact with everyday living.
